1. Poor child of sor - row, fash-ioned from the clay, Of what shall thine un-con - scious heart be proud
 2. Lose then thy pride, poor off-spring of the dust! With deep hu - mil - i - ty thy sen-tence learn,

1. Poor child of sor - row, fash-ioned from the clay, Of what shall thine un-con - scious heart be proud
 2. Lose then thy pride, poor off-spring of the dust! With deep hu - mil - i - ty thy sen-tence learn,

When mourning friends thy life-less limbs ar - ray, In their last robes, the winding sheet and shroud.
 And meek-ly own that aw-ful sen-tence just: From dust thou art, and shall to dust re - turn.

When mourning friends thy life-less limbs ar - ray,
 And meek-ly own that aw-ful sen - tence just:

When mourn-ing friends thy life-less limbs ar - ray, In their last robes, the winding sheet and shroud.
 And meek-ly own that aw-ful sen-tence just: From dust thou art, and shall to dust re - turn.

When mourning friends thy life-less limbs ar - ray,
 And meek-ly own that aw-ful sen - tence just:
